Fortunately, team and relational dynamics can be developed. Ed Chaffin's Team Tee Off event is a blended learning experience that builds team collaboration through the Birkman Method assessment and a strategic golf scramble event.

Business and Golf Create Impactful Learning Experiences

At the start of the leadership development experience, participants will attend a learning session to understand their own Birkman assessment results as well as those of the team. Then, they discover how team collaboration drives higher performance among team members.

The strategic scramble provides a hands-on opportunity for participants to analyze their Birkman results and how they will relate and affect the team's performance. They will also discover how their usual style, needs and stress may show up on the golf course!

Working in teams of four, participants complete teambuilding exercises to develop a strategy for each hole, analyze what must change in order to improve their performance, discover how to play "in the zone" and understand how to integrate those changes so they can achieve their desired individual and team results.

Throughout the one-day experience, team members build skills in five stages:

- Self-Awareness
- Self-Management
- Awareness of Others
- Managing relationships
- Leading Self and Others
