

Book Ed Chaffin Team Dynamics Harness Relational Dynamics and Create High Performing Teams!

Have you ever worked on a high performing team? What about the opposite? Most of us have experienced the spectrum of working on teams. What's the difference in the two – the quality of the relationships and the full understanding of the diversity that exists on the team. That diversity is what we want yet it's the main ingredient for miscommunications and misalignment which thwarts creativity and innovation. And, it can also complicate decision-making and create conflict.

Is it possible to leverage the benefits of team-based work environments while avoiding the potential downfalls?

Yes, it is and Ed Chaffin brings rich experience as an executive who utilized this approach and then developed his own program which he's delivered over 50 times in the past 10 years to teams around the globe!

With one-on-one coaching, in-person workshops with interactive activities and individual-based learning to build skills in five stages:

Self-awareness

Self-management

Awareness of others

Managing relationships

Leading self and others

This program drives a deep understanding of one another's styles, needs and preferences. We get highly accurate information on what our stressors are and how they can derail progress. Most importantly, we receive accurate prescriptions for managing our stress therefore building higher levels of trust. As a result of the Team Dynamics program teams are more cohesive, more committed and more effective.

We all know about individual emotional intelligence and the Team Dynamics program brings a level of emotional intelligence to the team that blends a highly interactive total awareness of all the members of the team in a safe, fun environment.
